Paul Farmer, MD, PhD

Medical anthropologist and physician Paul Farmer has dedicated his life to improving health care for the world's poorest people. He is a founding director of PIH, an international non-profit organization that since 1987 has provided direct health care services and undertaken advocacy activities for the sick and those living in poverty. Over the past 25 years, PIH has expanded operations to 12 sites throughout Haiti and ten additional countries around the globe. The work has become a model for health care for poor communities worldwide.

Dr. Farmer will highlight the work of Partners In Health (PIH) and Haiti's progress over the last ten years, including the recent international accreditation of the teaching hospital in Mirebalais. He will also discuss his work in Rwanda, including the founding of a university and medical school, which will train the next generation of global health leaders.
